Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical performance of 10 male triathletes. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a diet group. The diet group was instructed to consume a diet that was 1000 kcal below their maintenance level. The control group was instructed to consume a diet that was at their maintenance level. The subjects were monitored for changes in body composition and physical performance over the 10-week period. The diet group showed a significant decrease in body weight and body fat percentage, while the control group showed no significant changes. The diet group also showed a significant increase in endurance performance, while the control group showed no significant changes. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet can improve body composition and physical performance in male triathletes.
